Pre-Employment Screening

Pre-employment screening is undertaken by many companies to ensure that a candidate's health and fitness meet the demands and risks of the job. The process will give you the confidence to make a judgement on whether a prospective employee is fit to work in your organisation.

Recruiting the wrong person can be costly both financially and in terms of disruption to your business.

The process identifies current health conditions and can then manage them to reduce employee absence by encouraging healthy lifestyles.

Pre-employment questionnaires and Pre-employment examination and reports

Employers provide Midlands Ultrasound and Medical Services with a pre-employment questionnaire with relevance to the demands of the job. We have GPs to examine and provide a report on the health and suitability of the candidate.

New recruits attend Midlands Ultrasound and Medical Services for a formal medical. An extensive array of tests are available – including blood tests, drug and alcohol screening, urinalysis, vision and hearing assessment, physical performance evaluation, vaccinations and immunity tests.

Once the medical has been completed, you will be presented with a highly professional and trustworthy report.

Independent Medical Opinions

Sickness and absence at work is a growing concern for many businesses, companies and larger organisations alike, with an increasing cost burden in addition to being disruptive in the workplace.

If you have an employee who is regularly absent due to short or long-term health problems or their performance at work is affected by a current medical condition, you should consider referring your employee to undertake an Independent Medical Opinion.

At Midlands Ultrasound and Medical Services, we can provide a comprehensive and independent review using our expert team of Private GP's and Specialist Consultants when a specialist opinion is needed. This offers the employer a significant advantage over the limited information an NHS GP may provide; with more practical advice and amicable solutions. Thus empowering the employer to take a more appropriate course of action to resolve the case or improve their business outcome with the employee.

Our bespoke reports are able to advise on a medical prognosis, determine factors, such as a return-to-work date or ability to perform their normal duties, recommend reasonable adjustments that may be needed in the workplace and any impact on the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA).

Independent Medical Opinions

When is an Independent Medical Opinion suitable?

- ✓ As an opportunity to identify serious health problems early and prevent occupational illness
- ✓ To assess the health of an employee or determine a likely return-to-work date
- ✓ To identify barriers preventing an employee to returning to work
- ✓ To seek support on how to manage a sick employee
- ✓ To resolve long-term absence and repeated short-term absence issues
- ✓ To seek advice on poor employee performance at work
- ✓ If you suspect alcohol or substance misuse and want a professional review
- ✓ To discuss any work-related health problems

Independent Medical Opinions

What is the process for an Independent Medical Opinion?

- ✓ We arrange for signed consent to be obtained from the patient, allowing us to request medical records from the employee's registered GP practice
- ✓ A medical investigation takes place at Midlands Ultrasound and Medical Services, including a comprehensive review with the employee in person and any medical examinations required
- ✓ Midlands Ultrasound and Medical Services provide the employer with a bespoke report including the medical prognosis, recommendations and advice for the employer
